

Trail to Old Cut Block
(trail in poor condition)

There are campsites in the forest along the river. However, most of these sites are placed directly under dead snags and widow makers making these campsites potentially lethal on windy days.

We suggest camping along the road. There's better drainage there if it rains, it's better suited for hanging out/open fires, closer to facilities, and safer. You'll have less of an impact on the ecosystem too! Save the forest for your hikes :-).

**If you're camping in the forest, practice Leave No Trace Principles. Don't have open fires, use the outhouses, and pack out any leftover food and garbage.
